"JACK" ATKINSON HAS
TROUBLES OF HIS OWN

IN THE peaceful office of Jack Atkinson, attorney-at-law and captain of the Helelani Boat Club, a curious state of things exists. Here and there placards catch the eye on which are printed strange mottoes; heavy bolts adorn the inside of the door and on table and chairs deadly weapons lie ready to hand.

"And for why?" ask you; "does Mr. Atkinson dread contagion or anticipate the ill-timed visit of a bill collector or a tete-a-tete with his mother-in-law?"

None of these.

Mr. Atkinson is a rowing man and, withal, a business one. His office until recently has been a model of order and seclusion. A few weeks ago the young men in Mr. Atkinson's club started training for their annual race and immediately the genial captain's troubles began.

By twice and thrice and dozens the boating men dropped in at the office; when its occupant got down in the morning there was sure to be an amphibious deputation waiting for him, and when he departed for his labors at dewy eve an enthusiast would buttonhole him on his way downstairs and make him late for supper. When these failed, a ubiquitous reporter or two would bob up serenely at the most inopportune moments; these latter were never delinquent. Things at last came to such a pass that business began to fall off and something radical had to be done. Thus it came about that Captain Atkinson laid in a stock of swords and pistols and decorated his office with divers and emphatic signs.

HONOLULU SOCIETY AT AFTERNOON RECEPTION

The reception given yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock by Mrs. Louisson in honor of her daughters, Mrs. Jacob Moritz and Mrs. Gustav Simon, was one of the prettiest affairs of the summer season. It was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bolte, of Judd street, and was attended by a large number of the friends of the two ladies who once claimed Hawaii as their home. Nearly two hundred invitations were sent out and despite the overcast skies laden with promise of rain, the greater number of those invited responded.

Accented by the profusion of flowers with which the house was filled the function was further made extremely effective by the beautiful gowns of the ladies who assisted the hostess and her daughters in receiving the guests. At the entrance and front lanai a profusion of palms and ferns artistically arranged greeted the guests. Within the hallway the color scheme was red carried out by a profusion of parti-tinted blossoms of the poinciana. In the drawing room beautiful red cannaes were massed in the corners. Bunches of carnations decorated the mirror stands and tabourettes. Bright bouquets of yellow coreopsis ornamented the portion of the drawing room before which the guests were received. On the lanai where tables were spread with dainty edibles and snow white napery pink flowers prevailed together with potted palms and ferns.

Mrs. Louisson was assisted in the reception of the guests by Mrs. E. A. Jones, Mrs. Christian Conrad, Mrs. J. A. Walker, Mrs. F. K. C. Gibbons, Miss Maggie Walker, and Mrs. Moritz and Mrs. Simon. All the ladies wore leis. Mrs. Simon was attired in a becoming white organdie, with silk bow ornaments in the hair. Mrs. Moritz wore a handsome gown of black spangled silk on train. Mrs. Louisson's gown was of black pique.

A native quintette orchestra was in attendance playing and singing Hawaiian airs during the entire afternoon. Salads, sherberts and dainty refreshments were served on the pink decorated lanai.

Both Mrs. Simon and Mrs. Moritz leave Honolulu on the Rio de Janeiro on September 15 for their respective homes on the Mainland—Mrs. Simon for Portland, Oregon, and Mrs. Moritz for Salt Lake City, Utah.

The invited guests were:

Misses Afong, Mrs. Julia Afong, Mrs. W. F. Allen, Mrs. J. B. Atherton, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. E. P. Adams, Mrs. Averdam, Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Aldrich, Mrs. R. W. Anderson, Mrs. C. NEEDED SOAP AND WATER.

Horny-Handed Toller Floored by His Opponent.

"I never hear anybody speaking of a 'horny-handed son of toil,'" said a Kentucky colonel, "that I don't think of a race for the legislature which took place in my state a number of years ago between Tom Stuart, the editor of the Winchester Democrat, and I. N. Boone, a descendant of the great Daniel, at that time holding the office for which Stuart was making the race. Stuart was a young man, very poor, groggy and quick of mind, while Boone was well along in years, slow of thought and action, and especially proud of the fact that he was a representative of the farmers. So zealous was he in this regard that he carried it to the excess of almost total abstinence from water for washing purposes, and he would let his hands and face go unwashed for several days at a time.

"Stuart was quite the reverse in his ideas of cleanliness, and at one of their joint discussions he gave his opponent a blow that fairly knocked him out. Boone was making his regular speech, and at the proper place in it he referred to the matter of his relations to the tolling masses.

"My friends," said he, holding up a pair of hands that looked as if they hadn't been washed in a week, "to let you see for yourself that I am a horny-handed son of toil I ask you to look at these hands, and my pale-faced young friend from the city what he thinks of them?"

"Stuart was on his feet in a minute. 'I do not desire to embarrass my distinguished opponent, ladies and gentlemen," he said with a bow, "but I would say that they need soap and water."

"It was such an apparent case that the crowd took hold at once with a shout and Boone was completely floored, and later Stuart was elected."
